https://www.pinterest.com/sarahbayleyoregon/burrito-masala/

I've pinned vibrant pictures of Indian and Mexican products and scenes—from artistic plate designs to bowls of bulk spices—with color palettes that I think will inspire an appropriate color scheme and general aesthetic for the website. These are also good reminders of the cultures behind Burrito Masala's food. I've added photos of Indian-style burritos and other food similar to the food cart's offerings. These mouthwatering photos show the focus of the cart and are a good standard for the kinds of visuals I'll use for the website. I've pinned a few photos of other websites as good examples of the big visuals and sectioned layout we're going for. Finally, I've included pictures of Downtown Portland: I think the food carts and other images display the Portland atmosphere pretty well and gives us a glance at our target audience.